

Nearly 2 in 3 US air travelers approve of COVID-19 vaccine passports

Article

For more insights and key statistics on the biggest trends in today's most disruptive industries, subscribe to our Chart of the Day newsletter.

A staggering 65% of US air travelers think digital vaccine passports, which would confirm a passenger has been inoculated against the coronavirus, are a good idea for air travel. Still, 19% believe these passports are a bad idea altogether, reflecting the persistent divide among coronavirus precaution beliefs.

US Air Travelers' Views of Digital Vaccine Passports, Feb 2021

% of respondents

Note: 94% domestic travelers from the US; ages 21+ (92%)
Source: J.D. Power, "J.D. Power Passenger View," March 2, 2021

264211 eMarketer | InsiderIntelligence.com

More like this:

- Article: Planes, trains, and automobiles: Travel ad sales to soar in 2021
- Article: Just 41% of US adults feel comfortable getting the coronavirus vaccine at a hospital
- Report: The Digital Health Ecosystem